16 MORE WARSHIPS TO CUBA

The News Review

BACK of all concrete developments of the new program at Washington there exists a profound change in the outlook of the American people—a change which, in the long run, may well prove the most important single development of the whole "new deal."

May Call Special Jury to Re-Indict Perry Co. Official

Neglect of Circuit Clerk Lets County Judge Escape Trial

NO RECORD IS MADE

Officials Astounded, Alleged Embezzler Never Has Been Arrested

LITTLE ROCK —(P)—A special grand jury may be convened in Perry county in an effort to re-indict County Judge Baylor House before the statute of limitations runs against the charge of embezzlement which was contained in an indictment that was dismissed Wednesday because it was not recorded by the Perry county circuit clerk.

Prosecuting attorney Carl Bailey said he would discuss the matter at a special session of the grand jury with Judge Abner McGehee. The limitations statute would bar further action by the next regular grand jury which does not meet until February.

Clerk Blamed
PERRYVILLE—Because C. A. Black, Perry county circuit clerk, neglected to file the indictment or to make any record of the indictment having been returned, Judge Abner McGehee, presiding over Perry Circuit Court, Wednesday sustained a motion to quash an indictment charging County Judge Baylor House with grand larceny and embezzlement of public funds while he was sheriff from 1927 to 1931.

The action came as a complete surprise to court officials and to the large crowd that had packed the courtroom for the trial of Judge House. The judge was indicted by the Perry County Grand Jury in July, after an extensive investigation of reports of shortages made by accountants of the state comptroller's office who audited the county records.

Judge House was accused of failure to account for $2,645. The trial of Judge House was scheduled for Wednesday and elaborate preparations had been made by his lawyers and by Mr. Bailey and H. A. Tucker, his Perry county deputy.

Arrests Loom In Bailey's Escape

Pair Are Scheduled to Be Taken in Custody at Dallas

DALLAS, Texas.—(P)—The Dallas Times Herald says federal authorities investigating how Harvey J. Bailey, alleged "brains" in the kidnapping of Charles F. Urschel, wealthy Oklahoma man, obtained a pistol and saw blades to effect his escape Monday from the Dallas county jail expect to make two arrests here.

The investigators have reached the conclusion, the paper says, that two men assisted Bailey and that he did not escape but was "delivered" from the jail by one or more jail employees. "The three central figures involved in the network of incriminating evidence," the paper continues, "are Bailey, a trusted employee of the jail and a third, outside person, who has talked to Bailey since his incarceration here."

"Certain assertedly suspicious acts of one or more persons working in the jail are being checked where there is the least semblance of circumstances pointing to complicity. "None of the three can be counted on to talk, investigators realize; therefore, they are relying mainly on incriminating evidence that may result from a complete check on the serial number of the pistol that was smuggled to Bailey."

New Figures Show 24 Dead From Fury of Texas Hurricane

Search Begins in Remote Sections for Additional Lives Lost

RED CROSS ON SCENE

Dark Hued Picture of Terror in Rio Grande Valley Painted

HARLINGEN, Texas.—(P)—Army ambulance detachments Thursday began a systematic search through the hitherto inaccessible sections of a hurricane devastated lower Rio Grande valley for injured refugees. It was considered additional fatalities would be discovered in remote communities. A preliminary survey Thursday by Red Cross officials and workers accounted for 24 deaths and injuries to hundreds of persons.

No Deaths at Brownsville
BROWNSVILLE, Tex.—(P)—Twenty-two known deaths, hundreds of injured and property damage running into millions of dollars formed the dark-hued picture the great hurricane which lashed South Texas Monday and Tuesday.

Newspapermen and relief workers, ploughing their way through mud and water and debris of every description, finally were able to communicate to the outer world accurate details of the tropical fury which spread death and desolation through the rich valley of the lower Rio Grande.

At the same time, the astonishing fact was revealed that, on the face of preliminary surveys, no lives were lost in Brownsville, a city of some 30,000 persons near the mouth of the big river, despite the terrific winds and general destruction of property.

Experienced relief workers expressed opinion, however, that the death list probably would be increased as outlying districts, isolated by high waters which followed the deluge of rain, were explored.

Eight persons were known to have lost their lives at Matamoros, four at Harlingen, seven at Rio Hondo, two at San Benito, and one at Port Isabel, Texas.

Brownsville's established list of injured showed 20 at that city, 48 at Harlingen, seven at Mercedes and 25 at Matamoros.

1500 Injured

The number of persons suffering minor injuries, such as cuts by flying glass and bruises from hurtling debris, was estimated roughly at around 1500.

Eight hundred persons were made homeless in Brownsville, according to incomplete surveys, many business buildings were destroyed or damaged, and the citrus crop, valued at around $12,000,000 and about ready for harvest, was virtually wiped out.

All the way from McAllen to Brownsville, a distance of 60 miles, general desolation was evident. Nearly every residence and business building had suffered some damage, while the less substantial structures had been blown flat.

Arriving on relief trains from San Antonio, Houston, Corpus Christi, Kingsville and Laredo, relief workers, headed by Red Cross officials, organized swiftly to meet the threat of disease, hunger and thirst usual in such scenes of disaster.

Harlingen, in which 80 per cent of all the buildings were destroyed or so badly damaged as to require reconstruction, remained under water. Water also covered a large part of La Feria and Mercedes.

Heavy rains washed out the railroad track between Villadama and Monterey, and interrupted train service on the national lines in Mexico.

At Corpus Christi, the Neutec-Don Pacifico causeway, constructed at a cost of $300,000, was lost.

The palace bathhouse, Bayside dancing pavilion and the yacht club house on the north beach, the pleasure pier in the business district, the Remington lodge south of town and a number of small shacks and craft were destroyed.

Lynn Mayo and Cliff Jolley of Robstown, who were marooned on Padre Island since last Friday, were rescued in the plane of W. C. Maus, manager of the Corpus Christi airport.

CHRISTON BANK, England.—(P)—Account of Fallon, who as Sir Edward Grey, British foreign secretary, who gave Germany its ultimatum plunging Great Britain into the World's war, died Thursday at the age of 71.

First Actual Storm Pictures

This picture was taken in the stricken Texas valley just after the disastrous storm which killed many and injured hundreds more, swept entire towns and completely cut off communications. This picture, taken near Port Isabel, northeast of Brownsville, was rushed by auto over almost impassable roads to Corpus Christi and then sent to Dallas by plane.

This picture shows Corpus Christi when the hurricane struck. Water several feet deep rushed through the city's streets and the 80-mile gauge bent trees to the ground. At the right is the Nueces hotel which at the time this picture was taken had water standing two feet in its lobby.

Cotton Price Down 14 Points Thursday

Concentration of Power Continues Devil Dogs Ready

25 Combat Vessels Now Off Shores of Turbulent Cuba

CIVIL WAR LOOMS

President Roosevelt Informs Diplomats As to His Policy

HAVANA.—(AP)—Soldiers set up machine guns in uptown parks Thursday afternoon as reports received here persisted that the United States would ask the radical government of Cuba to surrender its power.

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Concentration of naval power off the shores of disturbed Cuba continued Thursday with 16 destroyers ordered there in the event they "be needed to protect American lives," thus making 25 combat vessels which are now or soon will be near Cuba, the latest unit being eight navy and eight coast guard destroyers.

As to the regular navy ships, Admiral William Stanley, chief of operations, instructed the ships which had been cruising with naval reservists, to disembark them immediately and to take on their full complements of regular officers and men. Meanwhile, more than 1000 marines were being mobilized as the seventh regiment near Quantico, Virginia.

War May Be Necessary
HAVANA.—(P)—Turbulent Cuba stood at the crossroads Thursday with some political factions convinced that a civil war would be necessary to solve her governmental problems, while others looked for intervention by the United States.

The radical administration which seized the government Tuesday, continued to show optimism that the present government would be successful.

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Amid fresh reports of Cuban disturbances, President Roosevelt Wednesday night called for the speedy establishment of a government to maintain order in the island republic.

Mr. Roosevelt outlined the United States policy to diplomatic representatives of South and Central America who were called to the White House while American warships were concentrating about Cuba.

He declared that it was the desire of the United States to avoid intervention and everything possible to make this unnecessary was being done.

He said the key to the American policy toward Cuba in this crisis was that the Cuban people obtain as rapidly as possible a government of their own choosing, and, equally important, a government that would maintain order.

He pointed out that if a government was constituted as quickly as possible to restore order it would have the happy effect of eliminating any threat or necessity of intervention.

Unrest Reported
But even as the president spoke a late message was going into the White House from Ambassador Welles to Cuba reporting considerable disquiet, especially on the southern coast of the island.

A regiment of marines stood by at the Quantico, Virginia base ready for immediate movement.

Secretary Swanson of the Navy was speeding down the Atlantic coast to night aboard the cruiser Indianapolis with Havana as his first port of call on a trip originally planned as a tour of inspection of the Pacific coast.

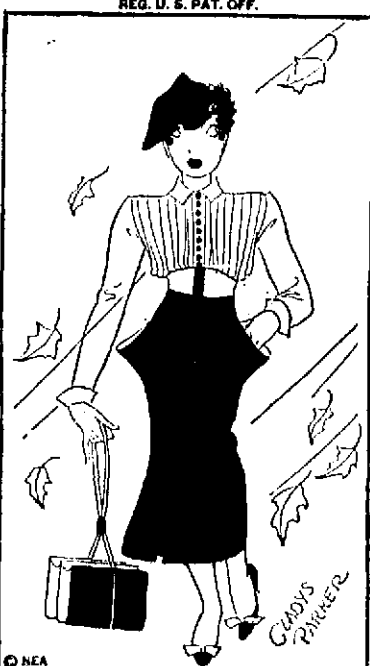

The battleship Mississippi was nearing Key West, Fla., while a group of destroyers, submarine chasers and other craft stood by within easy striking distance of other points of trouble on the island.

The president emphasized to the representatives of Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Mexico who met with him and Secretary Hull at the White House late today the object of keeping them informed of the situation was that the United States believed their countries had just as much interest in the preservation of order in Cuba as did the United States.

Mr. Roosevelt made it clear that he would have had all the representatives of the other South and Central American nations at the meeting if there

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

These "Kleptomaniacs" Under National Labor Board Bring Grief... You May Have a Johnson to Pardon Editor... Johnson's Wife Has to Wear the General.

By ROBERT DUTCHER
NRA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Labor Day found industrialists attached to NRA rather than over the way the federal strike mediation system is working out.

Labor seems to be able to play both ends of it against the middle. When labor's representatives here agreed to join in a "no strike" appeal, industry conceded support to creation of the National Labor Board with its plan for fair, secret elections to determine when workers wanted to represent them in collective bargaining under the recovery act.

But as soon as one strike is settled a dozen more break out. There is no authority here to stop strikes, and often the strikers are able to say that they are only upholding the law in its provisions for recognition of representatives of their own choosing.

Secret elections, held under N. L. B. auspices, are fine for the unions. The Reading, Pa., textile workers voted 75 per cent for union representatives, placing 95 per cent of the workers in mills involved under union jurisdiction.

Gerard Swope, Louis Kerstein and Walter Teagle—the board's industrialist members—now want to go slow on such elections.

Swope, head of General Electric, found an especially heavy cross to bear when demands came for an election in a section of the affiliated Westinghouse company. General Electric workers, reported organizing, may be next.

Editor's Pardon Sought
Roosevelt will soon be asked to pardon George Dale, militant editor of Muncie, Ind., who won national fame a few years ago in his fight against the Ku Klux Klan.

After years of fighting graft and hard-boiled officials, Dale defeated his political enemies and was elected mayor of Muncie. But last year he was arrested with other members of his administration and sentenced in federal court to 18 months in prison on a liquor law violation indictment. He is on bond pending appeal.

Dale and his friends charge a frame-up by bootleggers, gamblers and crooks whom the mayor had put out of business.

Mrs. Johnson's Problem
Mrs. Hugh Johnson insists that every time she wants to get in touch with her husband or her son during the day at NRA headquarters, she has to send a telegram.

Mrs. Johnson handles consumer complaints for NRA. Her husband is the big boss and her son, Kilbourne, also works there.

NRA's Youthful Orator
Aldo L. Raffa, national field co-ordinator of NRA, is not yet 28 years old. He tours around as a substitute speaker for Johnson and has had rousing ovations in dozens of cities. He developed his oratorical ability on debating teams at Harvard.

He is an economist, fresh from four years in the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, where he specialized in the international aspects of his science and in industrial control and economic planning. He has been director of public speaking and debate at Georgetown University here. He is full of enthusiasms, strong for social progress and an excellent tennis player.

Foreign Trade Waits
Trade negotiations with Latin-American countries will continue in a tentative stage until our industrial and agricultural programs work themselves out. Trade treaties and economic agreements must be held up until we have some idea what price and currency levels are going to be like.

Thus, current conversations with Colombia, Brazil and other countries are merely exploratory. The idea now is to learn whether it will be possible or advisable to enter into trade negotiations later on.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

©1933 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

When the children go back to school there are a few things for both parents and teachers to remember.

One of them is that fall is the time certain diseases choose to have a holiday.

It is hardly necessary to stress typhoid fever today, but in the old days before city filtration and laboratory tests of water supplies, typhoid lay in wait in the water pipes of old buildings until the children got back. Then there was trouble. I myself was one of the victims and the drags of the disease have affected my entire life.

In any community where there is any doubt whatever about the water at the schools, it should be brought in barrels from safer sources until something can be done about it.

But other diseases appear in epidemic form in the fall, that are not due to low or tainted water supply.

An Ounce of Prevention
I do not say this to frighten mothers—they all know it anyway—but to remind them that escapes are often due to the simplest methods of prevention.

I would warn children never to drink out of a common drinking cup. Most schools have fountains today. If not, there should be individual paper cups. If they are not provided, buy each child his own supply to take with him. And tell him not to stop just anywhere for a drink. Soda fountains should have either paper containers or a thorough method of sealing and washing—that in many cases are far from thorough. But of course we cannot go about with microscopes examining glasses. At least the glasses are washed before being used again, and that is something.

Try if possible to make the children keep their hands away from their faces, not only their mouths, but their noses and their eyes, make them wash their hands often, particularly before meal time. Clean handkerchiefs and no borrowed handkerchiefs from another child are imperative.

Fall Precautions
Influenza is a fall disease. Watch headaches and coughs. On wet days protect feet with rubbers. A child should never sit in damp clothes or shoes. Don't let colds run on. See the doctor.

A teacher can tell usually if a child is ill. If a head goes down on a desk—investigate. If the child seems feverish or flushed get him home at once. If he is coughing or sneezing frequently he is better off out of the school room and the rest of the children are safer.

Children need substantial food and milk. Lunch should not be a hurried cold snack but something cooked and nourishing. A child who is not well enough should sleep alone. The common pillow is a carrier of colds and other troubles when one head on it is that of a patient.

Precautions are not amiss at any time of the year and it only seems sensible to be on the safe side now.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

©1933 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

Your complexion needs stimulation and an occasional "toning up" just as the roots of your hair need it.

Sluggish circulation does not make for beautiful skin. Why not plan to devote a few minutes each day to improving the appearance of your complexion?

It is a thing which you must not overdo. Patting your skin too vigorously or using a too-strong astringent might injure the delicate tissues. But a reasonable amount of stimulation is necessary.

Skin toning lotions should be applied after you have cleaned your face. And they should be patted on. Part of the benefit which you derive from a good toning lotion comes through the method in which you apply it.

When you arise in the morning, clean your face with a piece of wet cotton which has been dipped in toning lotion and then in cleansing cream. Actually wash your face with the mixture. Wipe your face with cleansing tissues and then pour a little of the lotion on the palm of each hand. Now slap the lotion on your face and neck with brisk upward and outward pats.

Do the same thing at night. After using cleansing cream, wipe your face and slap on plenty of skin toning lotion. Then apply your night cream.

Scanning New Books

BY BRUCE CATTON

"The Fault of Angels," by Paul Horgan, is Harper's prize novel for 1933-34; and it is an ironic picture of the things that happen in a provincial city that goes in for the musical arts in a big-league way.

This city—whose thin disguise you can easily picture—is identified as "Dorchester," in up-state New York, where a rich industrialist has subsidized a grand opera company, a school of music and a symphony orchestra.

In the group of artistic folk who cluster about this enterprise is one Nina, Russian-born wife of an orchestra-leader. To Nina the life of the place is without soul. Devoted as it is to the things of the spirit, Dorchester is nevertheless under the spell of the dollars-and-cents background of its Maccenas. So Nina essays to remedy matters.

Now the book must stand or fall with Nina herself. All of its characters and events are passed in review before her vivid personality. The petty squabbles of the artists, the pretensions of the town's society, the ambition of the magnate himself, all are colored by her presence. If you like her you will like the book. Otherwise—

To this reviewer Nina seemed more than a little preposterous; and when, at last, she admitted defeat and fled to Paris, I felt that all hands involved should have sighed deeply with relief. And it seems to me that the magnate comes off better, by comparison with her, than the author intended.

But you may easily feel otherwise; and in any case you will find the book alive, and thoughtful. Whatever it is, it is never full.

It is priced at $2.50.

Plucked in the pursuit of love,
Blossoms that are earthly reflections
Of flowers that blossom above.

Of blessings such gifts will allow
To dwell in the lives of many.
So give them the flowers now.

The COMMONPLACE

By HELEN WELSHIMER

I HAVE deep love for kindly, simple things—
The hot, sweet smell of jam on summer stoves;
The humming song an old teakettle sings;
The fragrant towels which wrap brown-crust loaves.
For white clothes, clean, wind-swept upon a line
Where sun beads down; a playhouse children keep;
A window dim with honeysuckle vine,
And smooth, crisp sheets when it is time for sleep.

FOR yellow bowls where I ate bitter cakes;
The flower beds outside a kitchen door;
Toy boats in puddles small boys use for lakes,
And sunlight in a rug across my floor.
I pray each day that I may win that grace
Which God gives those who love the commonplace.

Interested in this place without investing?

TUESDAY was pay day at Bixby's and the following Wednesday found Arlene in Mr. Sanford's office with Eva. Arlene was being inflated into making her first investment.

"I think it would be fun to margin," she commented when the methods of investing were explained to her. "I'd love the excitement of it!"

So Arlene also bought Atlas Coupler.

To Eve it had always been necessary to share each new experience with someone. Only after confiding in another and reliving the event did she get the utmost joy from it. Hence her spirits were greatly exhilarated after Arlene made her investment and they watched the trend of the market together. There were days when both of them felt the stimulation of a rise of a point or two in the valuation of Atlas Coupler. And there were days when a slight decline sent them into the very depths of discouragement.

Atlas Coupler had long lain dormant. Eve learned after looking up data concerning it. After the patent rights had been secured there had been a lengthy, uncertain delay in marketing the device, owing to the power of the holding company behind the coupler that was to be displaced by Atlas. But now contracts had been signed and manufacturing had begun.

A reliable brokerage concern guided the activities of the issue and demand for it caused an extended flurry in the stock. The girls had every reason to believe quick riches were to be theirs for their risk and they anticipated their return eagerly.

Eve really longed to tell Dick of her investments, but she felt she could score a greater triumph by waiting until her gains were substantial. Not that she wished to flaunt her success, she assured herself, but she must be able to justify her desire to earn her own money.

Eve felt these days an almost overwhelming sense of hope and expectancy. She attributed it to the apparently established upward trend of Atlas Coupler, but it might have been born of the springtime. Mrs. Brooks, who was in her garden at six o'clock each morning, watched for Eve often and gave her a bouquet of fragrant lilies of the valley for her desk. Then came the week toward which the entire household had been looking forward when the lilac bushes were in bloom and purple and white clusters filled the air with their fragrance.

"Dick!" called Eve softly from the shabby old front steps where she was sitting with her arms locked around her knees. Dick, lounging in a gay steamer chair on the lawn below, looked up at her. The moon was sending beams of light through the newly-leaved maple trees and fantastic shadows danced on Eve's face. "I just love this place!" she declared.

Dick blew a curling wreath of smoke rings from his pipe upward toward the star-speckled sky. Then he answered slowly, contently. "We'll never find a better place in the city."

"I wish we could stay here forever!" Eve went on. "I mean happy and peaceful, just as we are now."

"U-um!" responded Dick. And then Miss McElhinney, one of the teachers who lived upstairs, came out on the porch. "It's such a gorgeous evening and you look so snug here! I hope you don't mind if I join you."

SHE perched herself on the newel post, nearer to Dick than to Eve. Before many minutes had elapsed she was off on a monologue which threatened to continue for hours.

"You see," Miss McElhinney confided in her slow voice that held a suggestion of a lisp, "I do like to come out of my character! All day long I have to be the stern 'schoolmarm' and after hours I long to be just the little girl I feel!"

Dick laughed but refrained from comment.

Eve studied the newcomer with some misgiving. Apparently her line was flattery.

"I think," Miss McElhinney continued, facing Dick directly, "that you are wonderful to accomplish all you do. Building that beautiful theater! And giving orders to so many men. Engineering must be so thrilling. I used to watch you so stormy winter mornings as you waded through the snow to get your car. It was so cold I hated even to get out of bed. I would take one look at the 'frozen north' out in the yard and then slip back under the covers until almost time for the school bell to ring."

Presently the girl's voice dropped to a lower, more confidential tone that seemed to exclude Eve. She moved nearer to Dick. Twice he turned and tried to draw his wife into the conversation. Eve, angered by Miss McElhinney's impudence and irritated at Dick for not discouraging her chatter, answered in monosyllables and presently rose abruptly and went indoors.

When Dick did not follow, as she had hoped he would, she went to bed, though it was still early. Half an hour later she heard Dorothy McElhinney's husky laugh as she bade Dick goodnight in the hall. Eve fancied there was an exultant and excited note in that laugh.

Dick paused at the bedroom door with the comment that the weather had changed and a sharp breeze was blowing in from the lake. When Eve did not answer he closed the door softly and settled himself for the evening with his pipe and a book. He had made no apology, no explanation. Eve, nervous and tired, cried herself to sleep. That husky exultant laugh echoed mockingly in her ears.

Gaynor Film to Close Here Friday

Actors Who Scored in "Daddy Long Legs" Star in "Paddy"

Janet Gaynor and Warner Baxter are now to be seen in their newest film "Paddy, The Next Best Thing," at the Saenger Thursday and Friday. The two stars were last seen together in "Daddy Long Legs" and their success was so great that they were again assigned to complement each other.

Her thirteenth characterization for Fox, "Paddy," the madcap Irish lass, offers Janet Gaynor something absolutely new. Paddy's greatest asset is at the same time her worst liability. For she possesses the uncanny faculty of enslaving the affection of those with whom she comes into contact. It is an asset because it smooths the rough spots of life—a liability because it makes her an utter stranger to disillusion.

Miss Gaynor has what is reported as her strongest role to date. For in addition to her well-known wistfulness she is here required to display her newly-found spirit. She is a rogue—and she is irresistibly charming. As the man who brings her down to earth and convinces her of his love, Warner Baxter is said to be in his most popular element. He is suave, handsome and the gentlest of lovers.

Equipment Issued To Porker Squad

42 Gridders at University Ready for Starting Practice

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—Cameras instead of tackling dummies will face the University of Arkansas football squad on opening day, September 10. Preliminary instruction on "What every football player should know" is also on the first program.

Head coach Fred C. Thomsen, who is starting his seventh year with Razorback teams and his fifth as director of athletics, has ordered his pupils to be dressed in new cardinal and white togs for the photographers. This is the first time an Arkansas squad has attempted such a first-day ordeal. However, the catch is that the first day is Sunday, and the Razorbacks will not start actual work until the next day.

Forty-two gridders have received equipment and are awaiting the official Southwest Conference starting practice whistle. In order to make up for lost time, Thomsen, with the aid of "Big Glen" Rose, who is starting his fifth year with Razorback teams and his first as assistant varsity coach, will hold two workouts daily until classes begin September 14. Freshman practice will not get under way until school starts. Two new men, Boyd Cybert, former Razorback star, and Boyd Patterson, former pilot at Arkansas College, Batesville, will be in charge of the yearlings.

Denies Special Mission
Secretary Swanson said in a statement sent by wireless from the Indianapolis that in journeying to the Cuban zone he was merely carrying out his original plan for a trip to that section, made before the present revolution began.

His statement follows:
"A wholly erroneous interpretation has been given to my trip. This trip to the west coast was planned, as everyone knows, a month ago. No one at that time expected a second revolution in Cuba."

"I had told Ambassador Welles, when the trip was first planned, that I would drop in and visit him in Havana if I could. During my conversation with the president he told me he saw no reason why I should not carry out the original plans for the trip."

"I have not been ordered to Havana. I am carrying no instruction to Ambassador Welles or anyone else. The Cuban situation will continue to be handled from Washington by the president."

Wilkin Gets New Job, Hot Springs

Local Man Leaves Hope School to Coach and Teach at Spa

Charles Wilkin, who at various times has served four and one-half years as math instructor and athletic coach of Hope High school, left Thursday morning for Hot Springs, where he will take up his new duties as math instructor in senior high school, and coach of junior athletics.

Wilkin was in Hot Springs Wednesday conferring with school officials there. He was offered the job of assistant coach to Mervin Perry, but turned down the post to have full charge of junior athletics.

Jess Eberdt, former University of Alabama football star, was then named assistant to Perry.

In 1930 Wilkin piloted a Hope football team to a 7 to 0 victory over Prescott, the first win the local school has registered over its close rival in several years.

School officials here have not named Wilkin's successor.

Wife is Net Star
Mrs. Charles Wilkin won the women's singles championship in the South Arkansas tennis tournament in El Dorado Sunday afternoon by defeating Jess Janie Agee of El Dorado 6-3 and 6-2.

Mrs. Wilkin won her way to the finals by defeating the defending champion in the opening day's play.

Hirst's Successor to Be Selected Monday
LITTLE ROCK—Selection of a successor to Claude M. Hirst, commissioner of education, whose resignation becomes effective October 1, is expected to be the first order of business at the quarterly meeting of the state Board of Education at 10 a. m. next Monday.

If the board members do not agree upon a new commissioner at the regular meeting it will be necessary to call a special meeting before October 1. So far, none of the board members nor the governor (who has no voice, but whose wishes might be considered) has not indicated a choice for the post.

"Mission" Head Gully in Texarkana Court
TEXARKANA—E. W. Morris, who says he conducts a Christian mission at his home on Red Hill, was arrested for the third time in the Texarkana recorder's (police) court of a charge of swindling, and was fined $5 and costs by a jury. On the two previous convictions he was granted new trials on technicalities. The chief prosecuting witness, a negro woman rooming-house keeper, testified she had given Morris a small sum for "protection." She said he represented himself as acting for the chief of police. Morris admitted getting the money but said it was for the use of the "mission."

THIS TEMPTATION

With the first cool whiff of autumn weather, comes a temptation to "economize" on ICE. This would be false economy. You would lose more than you gained. For ICE is needed to protect your perishable foods in cool weather, too. It gives low, even temperatures, as specified by U. S. Bureau of Home Economics, proper humidity, refreshed-air circulation, safe protection. Why not pay a few pennies for ICE to avoid paying dollars for food spoilage and doctors? OUR BOARDING HOUSE

By AHERN

EGAD, MADAM—THIS IS THE MOST REMARKABLE PARROT I HAVE SEEN IN MY TWENTY-SEVEN YEARS AS A PET FANCIER—GONZALES IS HIS NAME—AND, MARK YOU, WITH EACH PARROT, I GIVE TEN ELOCUTION LESSONS IN FRENCH, SPANISH AND ITALIAN.

GOSH—YOU AIN'T SELLIN' GONZALES, ARE YOU, MAJOR? WHAT ABOUT THAT MOVIE STUDIO THAT WANTS TO SIGN HIM UP FOR A YEAR IN TALKIN' PITCHERS?

WELL, AH—

HIGH-PRESSURE HOOPLE

BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES

DOOR WILLIE!! HE COULDN'T EVEN SLIP AWAY FOR A NICE, QUIET SKY RIDE, WITHOUT HATTIE TAGGING ALONG

HOWEVER, WILLIE IS A WISE OLD BIRD!! IT'S ONLY A GUESS, BUT SOMEHOW HE ACTED AS IF THAT WAS JUST WHAT HE WANTED HER TO DO
